(The above illustrates today's confusing European situation as it appears to impartial observers in the United States.)

New war threats rocked jittery Europe today.

Armed men battled on the Czech-German border. Berlin called the attacks "of the same nature as a cause for war."

Nations at brink of diplomatic break with envoys recalled.

The Czechoslovak government said three attacks on frontier customs houses had been made by bands of men who crossed the boundary from Germany armed with machine-guns, hand grenades and pistols. Two Czechoslovak officers were reported wounded.

The German reports charged Czechs had been the aggressors. The official German news agency, DNB, said 17 German frontier guards were wounded in one clash and reported another engagement between Czechoslovak frontier detachments and deserting Sudeten Germans.

Official circles in Berlin declared if the Czechoslovak government could not control its border forces Germany might regard the incidents as "of the same nature as a cause for war." They said "the most severe representations" would be made to Prague if details of the reports proved to be true.

Rumania was reported from Geneva to have blocked plans of Soviet Russia to aid the Czechs by refusing to allow Red troops to cross her territory.

Poland served formal notice on France that she wants a slice of Czechoslovakia, too, in the "dismemberment for peace."

In Prague, the Czech government was stalling for time before answering the Franco-British "unconditional surrender to Hitler" ultimatum. Reply seemed likely tomorrow.

NAZI-CZECH BATTLE ON REICH BORDER

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Sept. 20 (Copyright, 1938)—German border guards clashed with Czechs in Reich territory for the first time today in a bloody battle at Seidenberg. One Czech was killed and 17 Nazis were wounded.

The clash brought German-Czechoslovak diplomatic relations close to open rupture. The Reich drafted a stiff protest to Prague and ordered its minister to Czechoslovakia, Dr. Ernst Eisenlohr, to remain in Germany.

He had planned to return to Prague.

The Czech minister to Berlin, Dr. Vojtech Mastny, has already departed for Prague with all his belongings.

Two Czech gendarmes were captured after the battle, the German news agency DNB reported, but refused repatriation to Czechoslovakia. The body of the slain Czech will be turned over to Czech authorities late today.

CREATES NEW CRISES

First reports said the battle, reported to have claimed 17 Nazi casualties, took place between Nazi guards and regular Czechoslovak troops. Later dispatches said the Czechs were members of a fighting Communist band wearing the uniforms of Czech soldiery.

If the former proved to be the case, the battle proved the first real clash between Nazi and Czech soldiers.

The last serious outbreak of fighting at Maehrisch-Ostrau,

PRAGUE, Sept. 20 (AP)—Three attacks on Czechoslovak frontier customs houses by bands of men who were said to have crossed the border from Germany armed with machine guns, hand grenades and pistols were reported today by the Czechoslovak government.

The Customs House at Klein-Aupa, near Aussig, was reported burned after being wrecked by a barrage of hand grenades. Two Czech officials were wounded.

At Ebersdorf, near Friedland, government reports said, men who crossed the border shortly before dawn occupied the customs house for a time and broke into and took possession of the postoffice.

CZECHS RETURN FIRE

Czechslovak officials then returned their fire, and a detachment of Czechoslovak gendarmerie finally dislodged the attackers from the two Ebersdorf buildings.

Six government officials were reported wounded, and Czechoslovak officers said several of the invaders were hurt and dragged back across the boundary by their comrades.

The next border incident was reported from Neusorge, near Braunau, where 15 men were said to have surrounded the customs house and bombarded it with grenades.

Here Czechoslovak officials barricaded themselves and made no further effort to defend themselvs until rocket signals brought help from a gendarmerie patrol.

STALL FOR TIME

Prague authorities said there was no doubt that the attacking forces came from Germany. All appeared to be dressed in civilian clothes.

The authorities said they had evidence that a number of the invaders were members of Konrad Henlein's "Free Corps," the mission of which apparently is to harass the frontier.

Meanwhile Czechoslovakia stalled for time today in her struggle to maintain her 20 years of independence as a republic.

The cabinet was said to have found "unacceptable" the French-British plan to cede Czechoslovakia's rich Sudeten territory to Germany. The ministers were ready, however, informed sources said, to make use of the proposals in future negotiations.

BULLETINS

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, Sept. 20 (AP)—Envoys of Hungary and Poland were received today by Adolf Hitler to discuss the Czechoslovakia crisis.

The Hungarian chief of staff, Field Marshal Kroszlos-Fischer, sat with Premier Bela Imredi and Foreign Minister Koloman von Kanya during their talk with Hitler and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop. Poland's views were presented by Joseph Lipski, Polish ambassador to Berlin, at another conference.

LONDON, Sept. 20 (INS)—With the world awaiting a definite decision from Prague, the Czech legation here tonight issued the following communique:

"A definite decision will be taken when present diplomatic negotiations with friendly powers are concluded. The decision will be such as to preserve the vital interests of the state and also maintain the interests of all nationalities."

LONDON, Sept. 20 (INS)—The inner council of the British cabinet met at 10 Downing street at 3 p. m. today to consider the Czech request for elucidation and amplification of the Anglo-French partition proposals.

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 20 (AP)—The official newspaper Gazeta Polska prominently displayed today under the headline "The Polish Government Warns" a communique that Polish ambassadors had been instructed to present the Polish attitude on the Czechoslovak problem to the governments in Rome, Paris, London and Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 20 (INS)—The Czech customs station at Siefhennersdorf on the German border was evacuated early today and its supply of ammunition removed shortly before Sudeten fugitives fired on the building, the German news agency DNB reported from Prague.

LONDON, Sept. 20 (INS)—Czechoslovakia's decision with regard to partition is not expected to be known until tomorrow, Reuter's Agency reported from Prague this evening.

Czechs in Spain To Hurry Home

MADRID, Sept. 20 (AP)—A group of Czechs residing in Madrid prepared today to "leave Spain to defend the independence of the mother country." They applied for visas and expected consular authorities to provide them with traveling expenses.

MADRID, Sept. 20 (AP)—Twelve persons were killed today and about 60 injured in the first insurgent air raid thus far on Alcoy, important town 28 miles northwest of Alicante.

Czech Dilemma: Neither War, 'Yes' Nor 'No'

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PRAGUE, Sept. 20 (Copyright, 1938)—To gain time and answer neither "yes" nor "no" is today the strategy of the Czech cabinet, meeting permanently in Hradsin Palace while Hitler's army grows ever more colossal, the Sudeten free corps pushes a new assault on Czechoslovakia and the world waits to see whether the Czechs are going to surrender or Europe goes to war.

The Czechoslovak cabinet is in an agonizing dilemma. If they say "No" to Hitler they stake a conflict which would decimate their population and make Czechoslovakia a second Serbia.

If they say "Yes" to Hitler they stake a possible revolution which would sweep them from office and result in war anyway.

They seek therefore to gain time in the belief that public opinion is rapidly reaching a peak of sympathy for Czechoslovakia which might result in the resignation of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Premier Edouard Daladier.

They also believe that Hitler's Sudeten youth may meanwhile break out in open war in a fashion that would compel him to enter.

Hungary is expected, not only to ask transfers to Hungary of all Czech territories containing more than 75 per cent Hungarians, but will be asked to give Hitler permission for German troops to March through Hungary.

The Fuehrer will also ask Hungary for the right to put Germans on the Hungarian general staff.

This move, accompanied by great concentration of German troops between Vienna and the Hungarian frontier, is interpreted to mean that Germany intends in case of war to meet the Red army in the Danube basin.

The Czechs continue their military measures, having now well above 35 first-line divisions mobilized. A large red cross was belatedly placed on the roofs of all hospitals in Prague.

New War Fears Gripping Paris

PARIS, Sept. 20 (AP)—New uncertainty over the outcome of the Czechoslovak crisis today replaced the feeling in France that it was near solution through the simple process of giving way to Adolf Hitler's demands.

Diplomatic sources said France had made it plain to Czechoslovakia she would have to fight alone if she refused to accept the Franco-British proposal for giving Germany the Sudeten areas.

Franco Troops In Counter-Attack

HENDAYE, France, Sept. 20 (AP)—Spanish Insurgents increased pressure against the government's northeastern front along the Ebro river today, developing a counter-offensive designed to drive militiamen from positions held since July 27.

2 Arrests Mark Hub Balloting

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Voters of Massachusetts thronged to heavily guarded polls in record number today as the state's most bitterly contested primary campaign in years was dramatically climaxed.

Two arrests for illegal voting featured heavy balloting in Boston wards.

Neither the drenching rain which fell as Greater Boston polling places were opened nor the intermittent showers which followed seemed to affect the determined march of citizens to the ballot boxes.

VOTE IN DOWNPOUR

Even while the voting was in progress sound trucks and radio broadcasts still dinned in the ears of the electorate 11th hour exhortations of supporters of principal candidates.

Interviewed at polling places where they cast their respective ballots, both Governor Hurley and former Governor Curley announced themselves "sure" of victory by a "three-to-one" vote.

Indications were that the turnout at the polls, in spite of the weather, would set a new high figure for a primary election.

First Boston arrest at the polls was at Cushing School, Parmenter street, North End, where police seized Dominick DeLeo, 33, of Lowell street, West End, charging him with casting a ballot in the name of John White, Hanover street, North End.

DeLeo later pleaded not guilty in Municipal Court and was held in $500.

Second arrest in Boston was at Andrews School, Genesee street, South End. Taken in custody there was Paul Mazzone, 26, of Pitts street, South End.

He was charged with voting in the name of Peter D. Billie, Gloucester place, in the same district.

Purposeful march of voters by the tens of thousands to the polls throughout the state came as dramatic climax to one of the most bitterly fought primary contests in Massachusetts history.

With ballot boxes guarded as never before, with check lists everywhere closely scanned and with extraordinary precautions taken against threats of various forms of election trickery, citizens from all walks of life turned out to exercise their privilege.

Today's heavy vote followed vigorous and heated campaigning by rival candidates who continued their drives well into the hours of the dawn.

Whirlwind tours of Boston wards, salvos of charges and counter-charges over the radio and last minute activity of vote-getting organizations all contributed to an awakened public interest.

Particularly in the Democratic battle for state officers and in Suf-

More Rain Due; Damage Grows

The weather man predicted today there would be no cessation for at least 24 hours in the rainstorm which has deluged New England since Saturday, causing thousands of dollars of damage to business, transportation and agriculture.

At the same time it was announced the steady rain has swollen several rivers and their tributaries well above the normal seasonal height in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont.

Shipping in Boston harbor and nearby coastal ports was practically at a standstill as the result of fog.

The fog also disrupted airplane service.

For the second day in succession all elementary schools in Arlington remained closed. Lowlands were glooded by the rising waters of the Concord river. Celery crops along its banks were threatened by the overflow.

Emergency crews repaired Cape Cod roads damaged by washouts while residents of Hyannis were pumping out cellars flooded by a severe electrical storm.

High tides combined with a downpour in New Haven, Ct., turned the streets of that city into miniature canals.

Basements of stores in the business center were, in some cases, under a foot of water.

The Connecticut river at Springfield has risen two feet, while at Bennington, Vt., the Wallomsac overflowed its banks for the first time this year.

Ten Indicted In Roast Deaths

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20 (AP)—Murder and manslaughter indictments were returned today by the grand jury against ten officials and guards of the Philadelphia county prison, where four convicts recently died from heat in punishment cells.

Those indicted included William B. Mills, superintendent of the prison, and Frank A. Craven, deputy warden.

James McGuire, captain of guards; and Francis J. Smith and Alfred W. Brough, guards, also were indicted on murder and manslaughter charges.

Guards Robert Morrow, William Staines, Thomas Cavanaugh, John Mulherin and Sylvester Weaver were indicted on charges of manslaughter.

The convicts were found "baked to death" in their cells August 22.

After a long coroner's inquest, 14 persons were held for the grand jury. Of these, two prison physicians and two guards were not indicted.

Canadian Girls' 'Joy Ride' Ends In Boston

Their "joy ride" in Calais, Me., wound up in Boston.

Such was the story told today by two pretty—but hungry and wet—Canadian girls, Mildred Wilson of Toronto, Ont., and Lena Hewitt of Barnesville, N. B., both 19, when they sought help from police.

"We went across the line from Barnesville, where Lena lives, to a dance in Calais Saturday night," said Mildred.

"And a man from New York—we don't know what his real name is and didn't take his registration number—asked us if we'd like to go for a ride," Lena chimed in.

"When he asked us if we wanted a ride to Boston we thought he was kidding and said 'Sure!'" Mildred continued.

Then they told of an all-day trip to Boston, how their obliging chauffeur left them in Boston and drove on to New York. Monday morning the girls spent their last dollar to pay for their hotel room and breakfast.

Soaked by the rain and with no rides back home in sight, the pair walked into the Joy street police station and asked for "The Chief."

Soon Lieutenant John Foley had food and lodging provided for the girls, and today they will be entrusted to the care of immigration authorities for their return to New Brunswick.

Key to Votes And It Breaks!

Reddest face in Boston for a few, tense minutes today was that of Precinct Warden Frederick L. Eikins, in charge of the American Legion Post polling place in Chestnut Hill avenue, Ward 21, Brighton.

Trying to open the box containing blank ballots, he broke the key off in the lock.

To City Hall headquarters of the Boston Election Commission sped an officer seeking another key, while Patrolman William Mackey removed pieces of the first key with a pair of pincers.

Voting was delayed just 60 seconds.

Hurricane Heads For Carolinas

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 20 (AP)—The weather bureau today ordered northeast storm warnings displayed along the North Carolina coast and said a tropical hurricane of "great intensity" would pass east of Cape Hatteras tonight.

The bureau at 9:30 a. m., eastern standard time, said the storm which yesterday menaced South Florida now was moving north northwestward or northward about 17 miles an hour.

The center of the hurricane, the weather bureau said, was about 300 miles east of Vero Beach, Fla., at 7 a. m.

Storm warnings were ordered up from Wilmington to Cape Hatteras and the weather bureau said "the storm will gradually turn toward the north northeast with the center passing some distance east of Cape Hatteras tonight."

Find Man's Body On Beach at Hull

The body of a man about 50 years old was found today on the beach near Fort Andrews, Hull, by a caretaker. The latter, William McCusker, notified Hull police.

The body was taken tot a funeral home. The man was six feet tall and weighed 160 pounds.

Sears Roebuck Head Sees Danger Past

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20 (AP)—Brigadier-General Robert E. Wood of Chicago, veteran of the Spanish-American and World Wars, said today:

"I believe the danger of a European war in the immediate future has been removed, and that business in this country will now improve."

General Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., here for the opening of a new store, added: "Conditions had been steadily improving until this threat of war. I think the improvement will now be resumed, and that it will continue through to next spring."

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 20—Miss Ernestine Mandill, 21, a waitress, suffered burns on her face, arms and hands today when a man threw a vial of acid at her as she was entering her home, Prospect street.

Glasses she was wearing probably saved her eyes, doctors said.

Heavy Voting All Over State

RADIO FLEAS FACTOR

Veteran observers in many cases admitted themselves out on a limb. There were "ifs" and "or's" in all predictions.

Enthusiasm manifest at late rallies staged by leading candidates was critically assayed, but still a big question mark remained concerning probable reaction of hundreds of thousands of radio listeners.

Their vote, admittedly an important if not a deciding factor in the election, was only to be determined by the final count of ballots.

Police were stationed outside Boston polling places today for the first time in years. They had instructions to protect voters against annoyance from overzealous advocates of the various candidates and to enforce the rule against distributing campaign literature within 150 feet of the booths.

First community to open its polls was Braintree, where the voting began at 5:45 a. m. Beverly, Haverhill, Lawrence, Peabody and Newburyport started voting at 6 o'clock.

In Boston heavily-guarded trucks began delivering blank ballots to the polling places at 5 a. m., completing the distribution at 7 a. m.

VOTING BEGINS EARLY

Police remained in charge of the ballots in each precinct until the polls opened at 8 a. m.

Ward officers than took over responsibility.

Two trucks were required to carry the ballots to East Boston, largest voting ward of the city. One truck sufficed for each of the other wards.

First of the major candidates to cast his vote was Lieutenant-Governor Kelly, who seeks the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

He and his wife, Mrs. Marian Kelly, voted at 8:15 at the Stone Terrace balloting place, off Morton street, Dorchester.

Mrs. Kelly was second person to cast a ballot in the precinct. Lieutenant-Governor Kelly was the third.

Governor Hurley, casting his ballot at noon at Russell school, Cambridge, appeared in high good humor.

He predicted his own nomination by a three to one vote.

Mrs. Hurley accompanied him to the polls and voted with him.

RIVALS CONFIDENT

Richard M. Russell of Cambridge, Democratic gubernatorial candidate generally believed to have a New Deal blessing, voted at 11:25 at Beattie hall, Cambridge.

"Too bad about the rain today," he told newspapermen. "But cheer up, all will be sunshine before long."

Mrs. Russell casted her ballot just before her husband placed his in the box.

Voting at the Craigie street, Cambridge, polling place, Attorney General Paul A. Dever commented upon his position of honor as an unopposed candidate for renomination.

"I believe my case is a good omen of party unity in November," he asserted.

Former Governor Curley voted at 12:50 in Mary E. Curley school, Jamaica Plain.

He appeared in a buoyant mood reminiscent of days before his two successive defeats for U. S. Senate and the Boston mayoralty.

He predicted a three-to-one victory for himself for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, declaring he was assured of more votes than "Hurley and Kelly together."

Declaring he had received returns from Mashpee, indicating he had been given a large majority of that tiny community's votes, the former governor said:

"We members of the Mashpee tribe have to stick together."

Mrs. Curley voted with her husband. They were accompanied by the former Governor's son, Leo.

Paul Curley, another son, came to the polling place with his wife, Lillian, a few minutes later, to round out the family party.

Leverett Saltonstall, favored in the betting for the Republican nomination, had a first voter with him in Leverett, Jr., who appeared with his mother and father at 10 a. m. to vote in the Episcopal Church, Hammond street, Chestnut Hill.

William H. McMasters, rival Republican, cast his vote at the same hour at a church just off Harvard square in Cambridge.

The other two Republican contenders, Richard Whitcomb and Frederick Butler, journeyed to their homes in Springfield and Andover, respectively, to vote after having centered the closing days of the campaign in the Boston area.

KELIHER IN BATTLE

Aside from the gubernatorial contest, Boston and Suffolk County interest centered around battles for district attorney, sheriff and congressman from the 11th district in Charlestown and the West End.

Sheriff John A. Keliher is battling to hold his post against the candidacy of City Councillor John F. Dowd, who failed two years ago to unseat the sheriff by 8000.

Owen A. Gallagher, former legislator and Boston street commissioner, seeks the place now held by District Attorney William J. Foley, and John F. Cotter, secretary to Judge John P. Higgins as a congressman, seeks the place won by Thomas A. Flaherty at a special election to fill Higgins' place.

Middlesex County interest was chiefly in the fight for the Republican nomination for district attorney between Warren L. Bishop, the present prosecutor, and Robert Bradford, who seeks to unseat Bishop. Nomination is equivalent to election in the strong Republican county.

Fate of O'Connor 'Purge' Before New York Voters

The success or failure of presidential efforts to defeat Chairman John J. O'Connor of the House rules committee was being determined today by voters of New York city's East Side tenements and penthouses.

O'Connor, whom Mr. Roosevelt termed "one of the most effective obstructionists" in the House, sought both Democratic and Republican nominations for a ninth term.

The double contest was about the only one giving national aspect to today's primaries in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Wisconsin.

It was the President's fourth—and final—attempt in this year's primaries to unseat lawmakers whom he called Conservatives. He lost Democratic senatorial battles in South Carolina, Georgia and Maryland.

WEATHER CUTS VOTE

The raw and wet weather today brought downward revisions of earlier estimates of a record Democratic vote. The O'Connor management predicted it would total about 18,000. Voting hours were 3 p. m. to 10 p. m.

In the city as a whole 6000 policemen were assigned to election duty; State Attorney-General John J. Bennett, Jr., designated 2500 special assistants to investigate and prosecute complaints.

WPA projects were ordered closed in the afternoon to allow workers to vote.

James H. Fay, supported by Roosevelt, was O'Connor's Democratic opponent. No matter who wins that nomination, Fay's name will be on the November ballot as candidate of the American Labor party. Running against O'Connor on the Republican ticket was Allen Dulles, former state department aide.

New York will not select senatorial candidates until party conventions next week.

Wisconsin and New Jersey voters, however, were choosing senatorial nominees today.

In New Jersey, William H. Ely was the only Democratic candidate for the seat of Senator John Milton, who decided not to run again.

Wallace Seeks To Win Vermont

BURLINGTON, Vt., Sept. 20 (AP)—Asserting that "to thousands of farm people over the northern United States it is becoming apparent that most Democratic leaders stand for agricultural justice," Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, today urged Vermonters to "carry your state for the Democratic ticket."

James P. Leamy, Democratic candidate for Vermont's lone congressional seat, declared any party which scraps the Roosevelt program would "commit political suicide."

Fred C. Martin is the party's choice to oppose Governor George D. Aiken (R.), who seeks reelection.

British Plan Upset by New Czech Clashes

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)—An outbreak of German-Czechoslovak frontier incidents and a reported Soviet Russian promise to help Prague resist attack threatened today to wreck the British-French plan for settling the conflict peaceably.

As border hostilities spread Great Britain was said to lack official information of the Czechoslovak government's stand on the joint British-French proposal to let Germany have the Sudeten areas.

The answer was said to be delayed both by the weight of the decision thrust upon the Czech cabinet and by Prague's diplomatic negotiations, which appeared to be mainly with Soviet Russia.

In Geneva, there were reports Moscow was supporting Prague.

British officials maintained silence as to details of the British-French plan. Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected to take this "expedient surrender" back to Hitler tomorrow at their second meeting, in Godesberg on the Rhine.

Despite the apparent decision of the British and French governments to stand aloof there was obvious concern at the possibility that their plan might fail to prevent an explosion.

British Labor Against 'Grab'

LONDON, Sept. 20 (INS)—The British Labor party openly rebelled today against the Anglo-French proposal for dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

In a leter to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, Labor Opposition Leader Major Clement Attlee demanded immediate convocation of Parliament "in view of the reported proposals submitted to the government of Czechoslovakia which contemplate dismemberment of a sovereign state on dictation of the rulers of Germany and involves this country in giving a guarantee regarding the future of a continental frontier."

Such proposals, Attlee declared, constitute a "grave departure in the policy of this country."

Border Guards In Battle

which led to the breaking off of Sudeten autonomy negotiations in Prague, involved only Sudeten fighters and Czech troops and police.

Indications that the Nazi Reich would take stern retaliatory measures led to fears that Anglo-French efforts to prevent a full-fledged conflict might run into grave new complications.

BATTLE LASTS HOUR

German reports stated the fight began after several hundred Czechs fired on the German border guards and then crossed the border into Reich territory with the apparent intention of "kidnaping" Sudeten refugees.

Fierce shooting raged for an hour, it was asserted. Two of the German border guards were seriously wounded.

The number of Czech casualties, if any, could not be learned.

Prior to the battle, thousands of joyful Sudeten refugees celebrated wildly in anticipation of what they confidently believe will be union of the Sudetenland with the Nazi Reich.

This demonstration was staged at Dresden, near the Czech border, where the Sudetens paraded under glowing torchlights and chanted in the deep roar of Nazi crowds:

"One Reich, one folk, one Fuehrer!"

Sudeten Leader Konrad Henlein's "Free Corps" of 40,000 fighters camping along the Czech frontier declared itself ready and willing to "attack and win back" the Sudetenland if the Prague government does not hand it over to the Reich.

Poland Wants Her Slice of Czech Melon

PARIS, Sept. 20 (INS)—Formal notice that Poland wants her slice of a dismembered Czechoslovakia was served upon the French government today.

Jule Lukasciewicz, Polish ambassador, notified Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet that Poland will be unable to remain "indifferent" to solution of the minority problem in Czechoslovakia.

Poland expects its minority there to be accorded the same privileges as the Sudeten Germans and expects to participate in any general deliberations. It was understood the same demarche was made in London, Berlin and Rome.

Latest figures show there are 81,741 Poles in Czechoslovakia, or .56 per cent of the population.

Heavy Jap Losses Claimed by Chinese

SHANGHAI, Sept. 20 (AP)—Chinese reports said today sharp counter-attacks near Juichang had inflicted heavy Japanese casualties and caused set-backs in the invaders' drive toward Hankow, 100 miles northwest of Juichang.

The Chinese admitted their forces had withdrawn on the north bank of the Yangtze river west of Wusueh, 90 airmiles southeast of Hankow, permitting the Japanese an important foothold.

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)—George Brain, 27-year-old truck driver, was sentenced to death today for the slaying of Mrs. Muriel Atkins, whose body was found near Wimbledon's famed Center Tennis Court July 14.

Rumania Halts Red Czech Aid

GENEVA, Sept. 20 (AP)—Czechoslovakia was reported today to have received a Soviet Russian promise of support if Germany tried to seize Sudetenland but to have found in Rumania a possible barrier to such aid.

Sources close to the Russian delegation to the League of Nations said Moscow had informed Prague that if Czechoslovakia would resist any German attack she would receive Soviet support.

Russia, however, was described as declaring she could not guarantee a means of getting Soviet men and munitions into Czechoslovakia, and Rumania took the position she could not guarantee to permit Soviet troops movements through Rumania.

RUMANIA CHANGES VIEW

Both Poland and Rumania separate Russia and Czechoslovakia, but Czechos took for granted that Poland would refuse to become a corridor for Russian troops and talked to the Rumanians.

A week ago Rumania was described as having assured Russia of a right-of-way for Soviet troops en route to help Prague.

Today, however, Petrescu Comnen, Rumanian foreign minister, was said to have told Eduard Heidrich, Czech foreign office expert, that the previous Rimanian promise had been given on the assumption that France would rush to Czechoslovakia's aid.

DEPENDED ON FRANCE

He was reported to have declared that now the situation was changed and if Russia alone defended Czechoslovakia the Bucharest government could not guarantee permission for passage of Russia's forces.

Bucharest's decision appeared to be pinned entirely on what the French would do if war came.

Informed of Commen's stand, Russians were said to have replied, in substance:

"We are willing to help, but if Rumania refuses, how can we?"

Russian officials refused to dismiss the reported promise of aid to Czechoslovakia. Czechoslovak delegates said officially they had "no confirmation" of the report, but Check sources added that it was "not improbable."

'Czech Your Child, Aid Her,' Russians' View

MOSCOW, Sept. 20 (AP)—Reports that the Czechoslovak government was inclined to accept the Chamberlain-Deladier plan as a basis for discussion were received calmly in Moscow today.

No official statement of Soviet Russia's position on the Czechoslovak crisis has been issued yet, but in Soviet circles it was observed that the post-war republic—in fact, the whole post-war European status—was created by Great Britain, France and other powers without consulting Moscow.

If Czechoslovakia's creators now decline to defend their creation, it was said, it should hardly be expected that Soviet Russia alone would do it for them.

The Czechoslovak-Russian treaty provides for Soviet assistance in the event Czechoslovakia is the victim of unprovoked aggression, but only in so far as assistance may be rendered by France.

The Soviet view is that France, instead of stiffening Czechoslovak resistance against Hitler, is "advising Prague to commit suicide."

The Soviet press denounced the Czechoslovak dismemberment plan as perfidious, hypocritical, and a new step toward a world war disguised as a contribution to peace.

New Firms Join Sales-Job Drive

More than 5000 letters sent to firms in metropolitan Boston not yet enrolled in the "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign brought results today.

Scores of persons streamed into the Boston Sales Crusade headquarters at the Boston Chamber of Commerce to sign the enrollment card and procure window displays, buttons and automobile stickers.

The Greater Boston Negro Trade Association, Leon G. Lomax, president, and Benjamin Hodge, secretary, organized their membership in the crusade and plan to carry the campaign into every affiliated group in metropolitan Boston.

New London and New Bedford have asked for plans for organization under the "Sales Mean Jobs" banner.

Both these cities plan to be organized before the end of the week. Boston speakers will probably be enlisted by them.

Tomorrow is "Toiletries Day" in stores in metropolitan Boston and special displays will be featured. Massachusetts manufacturers play an important part in this field.

Friday will be "Shoe Day" and the New England Shoe and Leather Association is co-operating with the sales crusade committee.

After attending to their baggage the girls met socially at dormitory teas. President Mildred McAfee was hostess to their parents.

137 Drivers Lose Licenses

State Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today announced he had suspended the driving licenses of 137 motorists yesterday and sent warning letters to 156 others in an effort to reduce the number of accidents.

"The recent increase in automobile fatalities has stirred police and registry inspectors into greater activity against speeding and reckless driving," he said.

"Every month of this year, from January to July, showed a remarkable decrease in the number of automobile fatalities, but in August 65 were killed this year, as compared with 61 during the same month last year," he added.

To date, 46 persons have been killed this month as compared with 41 during the corresponding period last year. Of these seven died in a bus accident in Charlton last week.

Bay State Tops At A. L. Parley

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20—While 40,000 blue-capped veterans displayed the American Legion's might in the greatest parade ever seen in the West, Massachusetts groups and officials today dominated the national convention scene.

While business sessions were suspended for today's annual parade, delegates from all sections of the country were still inspired by Mayor Tobin's stirring address of invitation for the 1940 convention to be held in Boston.

Honor position in the giant procession went to Herbert G. Akroyd of Marlboro, Mass., once again victors in the national drum and bugle corps national championship competition.

Also prominent in the march were the Newton Legion Guards, rifle team of Newton, Mass., post winners of the national championship for the second time in succession.

As a climax to the parade, the marching Legionnaires will enter Memorial Coliseum, there to pass in review before Massachusetts' National Commander Daniel J. Doherty, while a throng of 105,000 look on.

Senator David I. Walsh aroused the delegates to almost continuous cheers with his keynote address. With thunderous applause they accepted his challenge to preserve neutrality, build national defenses and fight Communism.

Tobin Dooms '$30 Every Thursday' Plan

By PAUL WHELTON

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20—Between the many demands for his personal appearance at American Legion convention functions, Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston today looked over California's proposed "$30 every Thursday" pension law.

Then he threw it down the drain—so far as Boston and Massachusetts are concerned.

"Politicians," he said, "who ride into office on the coattails of the elderly and infirm by promising pensions in excess of the average wage of the American workman should be driven out.

"We can't pay the average American workman a wage of $30 a week, nor can we pay him anything like the income which would be given under the Townsend plan. So how, then, can we pay non-producers any such sum?

"By now, the hard-headed, clear-thinking citizens of my home city and of my state have come to realize that the time is past when any Massachusetts politician can hope to ride into office on any such promise."

Ken, Comedian, Loses Shirley To Ken, Agent

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, International News Service.

Copyright, 1938, by International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 20—Ken Dolan, Hollywood agent, last Saturday became the victor in the Ken versus Ken battle for the hand of Shirley Ross.

Both Dolan and Ken Murray, comedians, waged assiduous court, and although it looked as if the agent was more in favor than the actor, no one could be sure until today, when telegrams were received from Boulder City saying that last Saturday Miss Ross had become the bride of Dolan.

Even up to last week things didn't look so good for Ken, for they had had a big argument and she went stepping with Edgar Bergen, Ken Murray's closest friend.

It was Frances Langford, whom Dolan has managed for years, who played Mrs. Cupid, and invited the warring lovers to dine with her and her bridegroom, Jon Hall.

The elopement was planned at the dinner party and the marriage took place in Las Vegas.

Miss Ross, or Mrs. Dolan, has been under contract to Paramount for some time. Her latest picture is "Thanks for the Memory" and prior to her screen work she was well known on the stage in musical comedy.

It was her singing voice that first attracted Dolan, who is a member of the firm of Dolan and Doane. It was he who discovered Frances Langford and brought her from Florida to fame.

The bride and groom have told their friends they will be home in a few days, but beyond a mere telegram no other word has been received.

Arab Terror Bares Britain Weakness

(Editor's Note: The situation in Palestine today affords the best proof of the theory that the British Empire is on the decline, according to H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service.

In the following article, second in a series of twelve, Knickerbocker tells of the ruthless campaign of terrorism being carried on by Arabs against the Jews.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(World copyright, 1938, by International News Service. Reproduction in whole or part forbidden.)

JERUSALEM—The British have ceased to rule in Palestine. It used to be the Arab slogan that "The British rule by day and we rule by night," but today the Arabs may justly claim that they rule by day and by night.

Of all the evidence brought by the events of the last three years to support the theory that the British Empire is on the decline, and that the British no longer have the will to rule, Palestine today affords the most impressive example.

Mussolini could defy the British to close the Suez Canal; the Japanese could shoot a British Ambassador; Franco's bombing planes could sink a score of British ships, and British acquiescence could yet be explained on the grounds of long-sighted international policy.

But the British abdication in the face of Arab terror in Palestine can only be explained by the government's lack of any policy at all. It is weakness, but moral weakness, not physical.

Nobody doubts that the British could suppress the terror. The Peel commission itself remarked:

"It would be ludicrous to suppose that it is beyond the resources of your Majesty's government to deal with a rebellion on so small a scale or so ill equiped for modern warfare."

Nevertheless, 14 months after the commission made this remark, the terror has cost several hundred more lives, and daily waxes in intensity.

18,000 GUARDIANS

There are today about 18,600 guardians of the peace in Palestine to keep order in a population of 1,383,000. British troops number about 8000, British police 1200, Arab police 1600, Jewish police 700, Jewish supernumerary police 5665, Jewish private police 140, railway police 260 and the Transjordan force 1000, making 17,965.

Of the population there are about 300,000 male Arabs, so that there is one guardian of the peace to every seventeen potential disturbers.

The Arabs prove daily that it is not high enough. If they do not like a government officer, they kill him. Walter Moffatt, Acting Assistant District Commissioner, meaning assistant governor, in Jenin, had made himself unpopular by doing his best to enforce the law.

A little hunch-backed, blonde Arab boldly strode through the Central Police Station and upstairs to Moffatt's office, shot him six times in the abdomen, chest and neck, ran out scot free.

Death is the penalty for carrying unlicensed arms. But if the Arabs run short of rifles or ammunition they take them from the police.

ROB BRITISH BANKS

If they run short of money they rob the British banks. Brigand leaders held a meeting recently and decided in view of the increased difficulty in obtaining money from the neighboring Arab state to fix an initial budget of $125,000 to be raised in Palestine.

Ten members of the gang thereupon visited Barclay's bank in Nablus. Eight of them cut off th two ends of the street, two entered the bank, forced the cashier to hand over all the money in the safe, $25,100, and all ten left without haste in their two automobiles.

A few days later they learned that the Nablus branch of Barclay's had come into the possession of another $10,000.

The Arabs waylaid the messenger carrying the mail bag and added the $10,000 to their loot.

If they have plenty of guns and wish to impress the British, they raid and take complete charge of a town until the troops arrive.

Hebron is their latest exploit. This town of 20,000 always had a Jewish community until the Arabs killed or drove them away.

The Arabs now decided to teach the British that Hebron belongs to them. Setting out to destroy all British institutions, they began on the postoffice, smashed its furniture and telephone exchange, went on to Barclay's bank, kidnaped its two watchmen, tried but failed to break open the safe, and then continued to the police station.

There they met, surrounded and captured an armored car, killed its driver, kidnaped four Arab constables, killed seven horses, stole five more, and got away with all the rifles and ammunition.

RAID OFFICES

If the Arabs wish to register their resentment of Jewish land purchases, they raid the land registry offices, seize and destroy the records.

The bandits impose their own police regulations on the Arab population. They proclaimed curfew on the villages around Bethlehem and forced the inhabitants to stay indoors from dusk to dawn.

Meanwhile, they collect their own taxes or fines upon the peaceful Arab population.

The Arab bands maintain their own courts, try, and execute sentences. Their ferocity is not exhausted on the Jews and the British. They pursue with especial venom their own people who refuse to support the terror.

Within the legal British government thrives today the illegal Arab bandit government by terrorists, of terrorists, and for terrorists.

Its object is to drive out the British and subjugate the Jews. Will it succeed?

(Another chapter in this absorbing inside story of the Arab terror in Palestine will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American).

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

FRED ALLEN AND GENE TUNNEY were Boston visitors, but Fred did not stop over to cast a vote in his old home town, and former Champion Tunney lingered a few hours only . . . Fred came to town to visit with an aunt who is seriously ill . . . He walked from the Ritz-Carlton to the Westminster and back again with Benjamin V. Drohan, the South Boston lad who once was an actor himself . . .

George Holland

Tunney checked in at the Ritz and was host to a group of business men . . . The visit concerned the liquor business in which the former champ is interested . . . When Sophie Tucker finishes her engagement at the Mayfair tonight all records for the Broadway night club will have gone by the board . . . Last night's attendance and receipts were the largest ever attracted on a Monday . . . A sure sellout is anticipated tonight, and not less than $12,000 will have passed into the Mayfair's till for Sophie's week here . . .

The last sizable wager on the primary contest on the eve of election was made at 1:30 a. m. today . . . The bet was $500 against $350 on last night's favorite in the Democratic race for governor, and the money was placed in a safe deposit box of one of the large hotels . . .

That Chicago would get the 1939 American Legion convention, and that Boston would probably entertain the Legionnaires in 1940 was forecast here in July . . . And that Jimmy Roosevelt's ulcers were diagnosed as beyond cure-by-diet as a result of the attack made on him in a national magazine was vouchsafed in this space three weeks ago . . . Jimmy's doctor confirmed the item yesterday . . .

Once Over Lightly:

Attorney General Paul A. Dever and a group of friends will await the election returns tonight at the Ritz Roof . . . Paul is the only candidate on the Democratic state ticket who need not pass an anxious day. And, the way the boys continued to hedge last night in making predictions, the unopposed attorney general loomed as the only "lock" or "mortal inch" in any of the contests . . .

Tony Ruffolo, who hails from Boston, and who has been wagging at Proncetown night clubs received the tidings last night that he has been selected as featured vocalist with Eddie Duchin's orchestra on the Boston maestro's radio hour for a cigarette manufacturer . . . Judy Canova and the other Canovas will replace the Stroud Twins on the Bergen-McCarthy program . . .

Jack Marshard has pleased New York Business at the Plaza Persian Room has been satisfactory with the dinner trade eminently so . . . Marshard may continue under the management of Mills Corporation, although it is probable that he will act as his own manager . . .

If the guards and trusties at Charles Street Jail track down the vocalist who has been disturbing the nights with a stentorian war-whoop, oh boy! . . .

Bunny Berrigan and his boys were encored loudly after their rendition of the "Prisoner's Song" at the Ritz Roof last night . . . Jayne Dover who sings with the Berrigans, made an excellent impression . . . In the new Ritz Brothers' picture, "Straight, Place and Show," Ethel Merman is at her best with a grand song, "With You On My Mind" . . .

Al Jahns, a Brockton lad who travelled as far as Albany before becoming fully appreciated as a peanut leader, will open at the Providence Biltmore next Monday . . . He played at the Westminster for a brief engagement a few seasons ago . . .

Eddie Spellman has convalesced from an illness that worried his friends, and is handling the ticket sale for Ethel Barrymore's "Whiteoaks" at the Plymouth. His old mate of the box office, Carroll Sullivan, is with him in the Plymouth's ducats-cage again . . .

The "jitterbugs" who win Wednesday night's semi-finals at the Mayfair for the October 24 Goodman-Vallee jitterbug jamboree at the Boston Gardeen will be engaged for a week by Manager Ben Ginsburg . . .

Sheriff James Welch of Ossipee, N. H., was in town yesterday on business . . .

While Mr. Walker [illegible] wages paid in America [illegible] Britain and on the ground that ADDITIONAL tariff [illegible] can only mean SLIMMER pay [illegible] and women who work in New England [illegible]

This words were never spoken. As the whole country knows, the protective tariff, of which Hull and his colleagues [illegible] Asia has been at the expense of American workers by an out of employment in America [illegible] where industries have been unable to compete with similar products turned out by low-paid workers in other lands [illegible] lower standards of living.

Secretary Hull has [illegible] on tariff concessions and [illegible] talking about our own people's welfare.

SANE OPTIMISM and common sense were contained in Senator Wagner's [illegible] address at the Los Angeles national convention of the American Legion. The senator said:

"And [illegible] foreign tinder box should be found [illegible] to that point where there will be a [illegible] in the event of war."

That sums up the thought of the overwhelming majority of the American people. Most persons are certain we can avoid war if we stay at home and mind our own business.

Behind a world bristling with arms and seething with hatreds the only safe policy for the United States is that which is based on an IMPREGNABLE air and naval force and a mobile land force, along with the slogan:

"WE ARE NOT GOING OVER THERE—AND THEY SHALL NOT COME OVER HERE!"

THERE IS HOPE for college students, specifically college students who flunk their courses. Our optimist is Dr. Samuel [illegible] Chicago University dean, who writes:

"Any student who considers his own abilities early gets a good head start in the race for business and professional success. A year's [illegible] on the student into finding out exactly what [illegible] and what they will take him."

We see wisdom in that statement, consolation also. It probably explains why the valedictorian so often achieves only modest success while the class "dumbbell," is frequently summoned back to receive an HONORARY doctorate.

"NEVER TOO LATE" is the motto of Mrs. Mary Bradley, 87-year-old Salisbury resident.

Mrs. Bradley, despite her advanced age, has just become a full-fledged American citizen and she looks eagerly ahead to the vote she intends to cast in today's election.

It is never too late for anybody to seek citizenship if he [illegible] appreciates the country that serves him in peace and defends him in war.

Pigeons Kidnaped For Bowery Stews

By DAMON RUNYON

[illegible]

WE NOTED in a public print recently something of a discussion among letter writers of what one termed the pigeon nuisance in New York City.

This writer complained that the pigeons nesting about the churches and other public edifices of the big town create disfigurement, and argues that they have become a serious problem, though how they can be done away with he does not state.

Probably he has not observed the operations of the youth down around the Battery, or he would see a simple solution of his problem. We were down there not long ago relaxing on a bench and gazing out beyond the sea wall and we noticed flocks of pigeons waddling about the sidewalks eagerly partaking of peanuts and other tid-bits cast before them by the folks idling in the park.

We noticed a number of boys strolling about among the pigeons with such an air of studied carelessness that we gave them our undivided attention. When a boy is giving off studied carelessness, that is the time to take in the welcome mat and lock up the house.

Presently with a swiftness of movement that showed you the strength of the argument that the hand is quicker than the eye, these lads reached down one after the other and nabbed pigeons and popped 'em into their shirt bosoms and then went off toward South Street.

WE SUPPOSE those pigeons wound up in stew pots on the East Side, a not entirely ignominious fate, at that, as compared to the devastations by poisoned grain that have been practiced against the poor pigeons in some places when they reach what some persons deem the nuisance stage.

Personally, we are strictly a pigeon man, though we can readily understand how they might harass the artistic sensibilities of those who like to see their public buildings as bright as new pins.

A small flock of pigeons survives on a rooftop on the West Side not far from our house and a couple of birds from there have taken to visiting our canary when it is sunning in its cage on the terrace. The pigeons sit on top of the cage and peer through the bars at the canary and hold a conversation with it in ornithological gibberish.

THE CANARY was at first somewhat alarmed by the visitors but now it gabs right along with them in a friendly manner. We judge that the canary must have put in a boost for our house because the pigeons are making a practice of sitting for long periods right outside our bedroom window and indulging in billing and cooing.

That was all right for a while. It gave us a glow of satisfaction to realize that in this great wicked city love still prevails, if only among the pigeons, but they woke us up the other morning with their necking, and if this happens again we will be compelled to go down to the Battery and draft one of those quick-fingered kids.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE been having a lovely time reading Nathalie Sedgwick Colby's story of her life, "REMEMBERING." Tired of a family that was part American, hurrying north for hearty a visit to Battle Creek, President Wilson, Secretary of State ... she's seen all the fine doings and fashions of her time and made them part of herself.

And now she's pouring it out in a fine, gusty tale, piled with color, a Spanish shawl and a feather, there breathless, as the great pageant of them all sweeping down the years, with their heads high or bowed.

Bursting with great draughts of laughter . . . glowering magnificently . . . or trying a smile about their hearts, strangling close lest they should break.

BEST OF IT all is the way these great lives lie open to traffic. No standing aside with a "NO TRESPASSING" sign feeling that one's own tears or tantrums are something Special and Rare. Midway in the book, there's a line about that. Speaking of those years when she was still a marvelling girl, tongue-tied before Fame, Nathalie Colby says—

"I learned that . . . great men are inclusive. No fences around them. If there's a fence anywhere, run away! You can be sure something inside it has gone to seed."

No fences to the truly great; you've noticed it yourself, haven't you? That quiet, little woman in the queer hat who talked to you so friendly like, the night when you were daft with grief—saying goodbye to your darling. The plain, comforting words that, somehow, took the worst sting out of it all. As if she'd gone over the road, too, and knew all the hard turnings.

Yet, for the life of you, you couldn't remember, after, just what it was she said. Or even the looks of her.

And 'twas only long after, when you heard that she was a great lady with a world famous name, that a strangeness came over you. To think that you'd been talking things out to HER . . . just the two of you, sitting there together, sharing the hurt of it, with her as plain as any old shoe!

"NO FENCES"—not with the real folk. They've lived too much for that. Lived so tall that they've seen that life is all of a piece, with its joy and its sorrow, its fame and its shame. So why should any of us be trying to hedge ourselves apart? They never do, the truly great ones.

"Something gone to seed" in those folk who live behind fences that's a true word, too. Or perhaps it's a lack of anything that could have gone to seed, that's ailing them.

You've seen it, too—haven't you? how it's those who've never had much in their lives, of breeding or possessions or experience, who are always making the big show in public . . . calling attention to themselves with their biggety dressing . . . or fighting with the waiter . . . or shoving others around. Yes, it's little people they are, inside . . . AND SCARED THAT SOMEONE WILL DISCOVER THEIR WEAKNESS! So up goes the fence.

But the Real Ones never bother. For they've learned long since that human weakness is as good a bond for binding folk together as strength. Maybe even better!

IT IS A sobering thought that dogs, like humans, are auto victims in increasing number. Extra quarters for caring for dogs injured in traffic accidents have been added to the rescue shelters of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

At the Longwood headquarters of the Society there is a long list of waiting persons anxious to adopt strays.

Apartment house dwellers are going in for cocker spaniels this Fall, with Scotties and dachshunds favored in that order. Big animals of the watch dog type are increasing, but true dog lovers will be glad to know that most of them are being adopted by people who live in the suburbs.

Families with children and plenty of land around the house are turning once more to that perennial pet, the St. Bernard.

IF YOU'VE never chanced upon that yellowed-with-age book "Boston Watch and Police," you'll enjoy a passage written by an Englishman who visited Boston back in 1698. Writing of his impressions, he said:

"The buildings, like their women, are neat and handsome, and their streets, like the hearts of their men, are paved with pebbles."

STYLE NOTES FOR MEN: Glimpsed Police Commissioner Timilty in plum colored tuxedo at the Copley Plaza...Boston Port Authority's Maxwell B. Grossman wearing a white corduroy jacket ...Secretary "Cap" Doherty of the State Industrial and Development Commission, a symphony in brown . . . Lou Brems, director of Public Celebrations for Boston sporting a pink shirt... Roy F. Williams, general manager of Associated Industries of Massachusetts, never without a boutonniere.

MOST OF THOSE psychology tests develop inferiority complexes but when Clyde Lucas, taking an engineering course at the University of Kansas was expected to one he developed rhythm.

Lucas was just plugging along with electrical gadgets when he discovered his I. Q. was 93 per cent musical. So he took up swing. Patrons at Hotel Statler, where his orchestra opens tomorrow night, will rate him 100 per cent.

AN OLD MAN who has been feeding the squirrels on the Common for years says civilization is softening them up. They have grown so used to peanuts that when they get a good old-fashioned chestnut now they hide it to mellow it because they can't crack it with their teeth. Next, he says disgustedly, they'll be seeing their dentists twice a year!

New York Cavalcade

THE REASON I have always regarded Fred Astaire with something of awe is that the first time I met him—in Sardi's—he wore a flaming crimson cravat—and handkerchief to match... Never before had I seen such a display of sartorial boldness—and it left a lasting impression... Strange, the impressions you have of notables before you see them in person...To me, August Heckscher has always been a giant in stature... The other day I passed him on Fifth avenue . . . a thinnish, smallish gentleman—but still erect in his 91st year.

Most pronounced fop in my memory was the late Daddy Browning—who admitted, frankly, he wore corsets to keep his figure trim...He consented to have his experiences "ghosted" when the energetic manager of the syndicate for which I was then working, spread a newspaper open on the table, drew a finger across the double spread and thundered: "How, Mr. Browning, would you like to see your name in letters this high—right across the top of these pages—almost every day?"..."I think," purred Mr. Browning, "it would be very nice."

RURAL TOUCH is the army of small boys and their papas calmly fishing from the banks of the Hudson just below Riverside Drive, with noisy traffic crackling about their ears...The first time I ever went fishing was in the Morris Canal, near Greenville, N. J.... We used no hooks, merely worms tangled into the string... Our catch was what is known as killies—about the size of sardines . . . These we sold by the bottleful to the more daring fishermen, who went out for Lafayettes and other sea creatures in the stormier waters of the river.

IN LATER YEARS, in East Lyme, Connecticut, I learned about another type of fishing—snaring buckeyes with bare hands—as they tried to hop back overboard.

LIKE GEORGE RECTOR, who followed in the footsteps of his illustrious papa, Sam Salvin maintains the tradition set by his father who, at one time, owned 13 wine-and-dine establishments. Salvin, currently associated with Ben Mardin in the operation of the Riviera, owns the Patio and Colony clubs in Palm Beach.

A paunchy, pugilistic-looking gentleman, Salvin still remains the type of suave boniface who lulls you into believing that his own mission in life is to serve you—at any sacrifice.

AT THE MERCURY THEATER rehearsals the try-out line has been "Down with Robespierre, Up with Danton" . . . Over and over again, the aspirants are forced to shout the line . . . One hopeful, after being made to repeat almost two dozen times, finally yelled in exasperation: "Down with Robespierre, Down with Danton—and way, way down with Orson Welles!" ...The hard-boiled, two-fisted hero of fiction and cinema—Detective Johnny Broderick, sips tea—with lemon—at Dave's Blue Room.

Catholic Guilds To Open Season

School reopenings, the beginning of the theatrical season and the prospect of a whirl of active club events have attracted many reluctant vacationists back to town.

Just returned to Brookline after a pleasant season in Dennis are Mrs. Edward Dunn and her pretty daughter Sheila.

They were glimpsed last evening at the opening of Ethel Barrymore in "Whiteoaks." Sheila, who spent last season at Stonehleigh College in Rye, N. H. chose a dubonnet ensemble effectively combined with gray fox.

Among other prominent folks who attended the premiere were Mrs. William Arthur Reilly of Jamaica Plain, a former president of the Cecilian Guild. The club will resume its activities with its opening meeting the first Tuesday of next month at the League House.

Accompanying Mrs. Reilly was her mother, Mrs. John McElroy, who is prominent in activities of the League of Catholic Women.

An early October meeting is also scheduled for the Guild of Infant Samuel which has named the first Tuesday of next month as the date of its initial get together of the season.

Mrs. Joseph J. Ahern of Newton who summered at Harwichport, will again direct the organization. An eventful season is planned by the group of philanthropists. The annual supper dance, always a highlight of the early fall season, will take place on the first Friday evening of November. Later in the month, the club's yearly bazaar will be held.

Eyewitness Account of Earthquake Horror

CHAPTER 29

Larry cracked away great scoop in the Chicago American, day after day unfolding the story of each bashful but optimistic subject in detail. The first seven interested him, the second 12 were harder to do for it was the same old thing all over; and by the third dozen he was so thoroughly bored he could think of nothing but a change of scene.

Bert caught the fever from him. In June they started for San Francisco, with the Orient as their ultimate objective. But they used up the first money in a big three weeks' bust worthy of the best traditions of San Francisco.

Undismayed, they worked their way across the Pacific to Manila as bellboys on the army transport Sherman. The Philippines held them only until they got another stake together and they sailed north to China. Webb hired them for the China Press and the Star.

Then I had come [illegible] and split the [illegible] combination as women are wont to do. I had quarrels [illegible] ing of responsibility about that, which helped me now to [illegible] what I wanted for myself.

It was in April that we returned back for the Orient on a [illegible] that which Webb had refused us. We had two trunks a couple of modest beds a crib and the baby.

At Yokohama we [illegible] friends left Kobe with the same address and went ashore.

It was Friday, August 26th. The Empress left Monday. A day and week en [illegible]. Officers and [illegible] a three-day holiday.

We sat awhile in the [illegible] the Grand Hotel that [illegible] room which has been [illegible] famous man and infamous [illegible] who has passed through the [illegible] Yokohama offers [illegible] visitors from the States [illegible] to buy real kimonos, the kind the Japanese wear as [illegible] from those made for the American trade.

The fine kimonos are the heavy crepes with their [illegible] mysterious [illegible] Fujis, suggested [illegible] shaded backgrounds done with [illegible] the skill. So long as [illegible] of them is left and they were [illegible] ever their quiet [illegible] is a wonder of a [illegible] charm.

THE EARTH SWAYS

My Yokohama kimono was of robin's egg blue [illegible] a small shop to which Randall [illegible] had taken us. Randall and his wife Dorothy now married to Domei C Bess Christian Science Monitor correspondent in Geneva [illegible], our closest friends in Honolulu and had preceded us to Tokyo where Randall was on the Advertiser. He met our ship at the dock. Often afterwards when I looked at the kimono I thought of Yokohama, that warm August day full of life and gaiety, forever in the tragedy of the morrow.

And I thought of Randall who came as close to death as any man. And of ourselves [illegible] passionately in Tokyo and almost missing the boat in Yokohama harbor.

Next day, September 1st, we reached Kobe. We were meeting some old friends in the Oriental Hotel for tiffin and had just sat down at table when [illegible] attack.

There was that [illegible] always roll of the [illegible] feel the [illegible] motion [illegible] earth

[illegible] crystal [illegible] overhead swayed as in a storm at sea. [illegible] silver glass clattered and [illegible] on the floor. We rushed out [illegible] doors and felt it again. But [illegible] quakes are common in Japan and presently we were laughing at our own fears shrugging our shoulders and exclaiming, "Oh, just another Japanese earthquake," and even returning to the dining room, already cleared of its minor wreckage. We finished tiffin presently and went aboard our ship for China.

Yet at that very minute the Japan that lay to the eastward was a shambles of ruined buildings spurting everywhere, panic and pandemonium masters of the dying and screams of the living.

Randall Gould whom we had just left was trapped in Tokyo, his wife, Dorothy, in Miyanoshita, a mountain resort a hundred miles away. (One of Dorothy's gifts is a precise and orderly mind. Her poise in moments of stress is extraordinary. In all the years I've known her and over the world, I've never seen an occasion where she lost her head.)

In the midst of the earthquake she recorded the minutiae of events around her. That first-hand account in a letter, dramatic by its understatement, came to us when we arrived in Shanghai and learned from frantic cables from the States that we ourselves were listed among the missing.

RUINS EVERYTHING

The letter, dated Kyoto Sept 7 is before me as I write. It records on its pages the personal experiences of one who escaped. She writes:

"Several of us were in the outdoor swimming pool on Saturday, about a half hour before the quake. A few minutes before noon I decided I had enough and went to my room.

"I had just removed my wet bathing suit, slipped on a nightgown and was lying on my bed, with my hair all wet, resting for a few minutes before dressing for tiffin, when the quake came without any warning whatsoever.

"Well, when this tremendous quake came at Miyanoshita it rocked, of course, it was not safe to remain in the building, but there was nothing else to do. Glass and tile were falling and I did not like the look of things outside any more than in my room. Besides, I had small taste for stepping around at high noon in a nightgown. So I decided to lie in bed until the quake should subside. I wrapped all the bedding around me to protect myself in case the ceiling came down and pinned the pillows on my head.

I decided I could not lie in bed [illegible] a half hour I [illegible] out and started [illegible] dressed.

When I went [illegible] 45 minutes after the first shock I was waiting for the quaking [illegible] for a few minutes I called the main building of the [illegible] and found myself [illegible] the midst of the chaos.

I [illegible], was through the door as [illegible] as possible and [illegible] door. There on the [illegible] most of the hotel guests [illegible] frightened [illegible] watching the big hotel [illegible] three blocks [illegible] two blocks [illegible].

[illegible] no one in the hotel [illegible] was seriously injured and only [illegible] who was shopping in a curio store in town was killed. Many Japanese villagers were killed however and ten died in the [illegible].

[illegible] one time believed that Yokohama and Tokyo, at which [illegible] had been aflame, the quake and everyone [illegible] hoped that reports from these two cities would [illegible] bring us home. We [illegible] on the mountains [illegible] the roads were all [illegible].

[illegible] two of the men in our party [illegible] at [illegible] waiting for quakes, set out over the mountains to Tokyo. They said to be an unwise move as we later learned, because [illegible] was far worse [illegible] Miyanoshita. We have not learned yet what happened to these two men but they are [illegible] safe.

I forgot to mention that we all slept out of doors Saturday and Sunday nights on mattresses we [illegible] dragged out from the hotel.

HIKING TO SAFETY

Monday [illegible] messengers came over the mountains bringing word that Yokohama had burned to the ground. [illegible] no one knew what had happened to Tokyo.

Many [illegible] and about [illegible] the guests of the hotel [illegible] to the big hall [illegible]. We put our bedding on the floor there and slept there Monday and Tuesday nights. That [illegible] part of the building was less damaged by the quake and seemed safe, as in fact it was.

Tuesday night we got word from the two men who had started towards Kobe that the roads were passable on foot and that they were sending five cars to carry our band [illegible] out as far as we were all very restless waiting around four days with nothing to do, with no news other [illegible] sleep, safety from [illegible] dress, [illegible] of our party decided to hike out Wednesday morning. It seemed as though all of us who could walk should get out and leave the chow for the [illegible], children and invalids.

"Mr Cranston who had [illegible] back in rescuing his [illegible] did not leave. His wife and niece and the latter's roommate remained with him.

"Five of us set out with five [illegible] coolies. We [illegible] morning. I felt like a fifth wheel to the wagon but my [illegible] have been the best possible friends to me each of them seeming to consider herself or herself especially obliged to coddle me. As a matter of fact I needed no babying as I was in excellent health.

"We took a slow easy hike up hill for three miles to Line Hakone. There we were able to get tea and eggs for tiffin. I had been a bit uneasy about how my sprained ankle would stand the strain, but it did not give me the [illegible] trouble. The country we walked through had all been shattered by the quake.

"At Hakone we got three horses with wooden pack saddles on which we women rode for twelve miles down the mountains. The ride was more uncomfortable than the walking had been but it saved our feet.

"Thus we arrived at the railway station of Mamiya at nightfall. We caught a local train and rode two hours to another town which was practically out of the quake zone. It rained steadily [illegible] new buildings standing upright and to have electric lights. We had baths dinner, and slept two hours catching an express train at 1:30 a.m. for Kyoto.

"Accordingly we were the [illegible] to a great [illegible] of the hotel [illegible] one of the best [illegible] and we are resting and waiting for [illegible] as to the next move."

Bert and Irene [illegible] to Kobe yesterday, returning [illegible] last night. It was Randall who had been an angel to me all along, who got Roderick Matthews correspondent for the Chicago Tribune to Kobe and got word of Randall's safety.

So now we [illegible] the Pacific coast, of Yokohama and Tokyo. You know as much as I do, except for the [illegible] since then is a result of [illegible] I am hoping [illegible] will soon news as I may get from time to time.

And that news filled [illegible] joyous tips from the Daily and [illegible] of old friends best [illegible] heroism and [illegible] with the quake which [illegible] for major catastrophes.

BERT'S BAD LUCK

Bert was the [illegible] for a while. He had [illegible] Kobe to buy me a [illegible] and I didn't [illegible] returned when the ship [illegible] loudly over the city warning of the approach of [illegible] The crew waited to haul up the gangplank. I was in the harbor boat coming [illegible] I knew the captain would not wait [illegible] face or [illegible] but [illegible] the [illegible] and time of departure. At the ninth minute Bert, turning fast and jumping [illegible], came down the dock and up the gangplank snatching [illegible] as the [illegible] was being hoisted from a crane following him. A sharp whistle blew; the men handled the gangplank and we were off.

Now is Stevenson he cursed his luck. Had he missed the ship he'd have been the first newspaperman to flash the news of the Japanese catastrophe to the States, for all wires were down, and news went first to Kobe and was relayed [illegible] to the States, backwards, via Shanghai.

But we were home again and we were safe [illegible]. At [illegible] we had moved into a modern apartment, the second of its kind in Shanghai.

War Scares Depress Pound

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

War fears have so positively dominated markets; so completely monopolized headlines that many of their after effects, whether or not they have been needless, are overlooked.

We propose to look at what has happened, what effect on our economy we have had and is likely to be as a result of war scares. It is the beginning of the period of stock [illegible]

A few weeks ago, before the situation abroad became critical, we noted that a great war [illegible] of the stock market was not [illegible] place. One that, under [illegible] or calmer, conditions would have brought strong protests.

It is now a fact. And probabilities do not suggest offsetting action by those controlling the dollar's destinies.

GIL DOBIE

GIL DOBIE urges Boston College men not to expect too much—or too little—when team opens its season Saturday with Canisius. Eagles face "suicide" schedule but have plenty of man power.

Gloom Out for Dobie

B. C. Strong—Foes Tough

By WILL CONNELL

Gil Dobie, who was [illegible] Boston College [illegible] by Canisius at the Harvard Stadium [illegible]

[illegible] has stressed [illegible] with the first [illegible] of the third [illegible] Varsity squad.

Just as [illegible] talks facts and [illegible] Dobie [illegible] the [illegible]

This should [illegible] schedule than last year's, and B. C. team strength [illegible] that of 1937. Tony De Nova, [illegible] the 37 backfield [illegible] fans as from the line, were [illegible] above present caliber.

Gil writes [illegible] in black ink on the hope ledger thus:

"The spirit of this team is good, and improving. We still lack a first class passer big and tough enough to take the terrible beating any passer must take.

"We have as open an offense as any team, but carrying out wide open plays is something else. Unless you have exceptional players, you're gambling foolishly with a so-called pass attack. We'll use passes to balance our offense but won't have enough of a pass threat to keep the other teams worrying."

Dobie won't name a starting team for Saturday, but here's one probably correct:

PETE CIGNETTI

Goodreault is a sophomore, the others are lettermen, regulars or close to it last year.

But can spirit make up for manpower handicaps against Detroit and Temple, better than last year Indiana, a newcomer but [illegible] rated Best Bet for 1938; Boston University and Northeastern, at least as strong as last year; tough Florida and St. Anselm's and Holy Cross, unbeaten last year and slightly better this fall if Dr. Eddie Anderson gets a few breaks.

DOBIE SENSIBLE

There's the story—why Gil Dobie is neither gloomy nor gleeful. He's too seasoned and sensible.

The anvil chorus that hit B. C. last year after three defeats is the least of his worries, Gil says.

"The only way to meet football criticism is to blind the critics with success."

Maybe these Eagles of 1938 will do just that, but no one can look at the facts and expect it. If Boston College does have a [illegible] title team the thrill will be all the sweeter for the customers.

Cards-B's Game Off

Twin Bill Tomorrow

Rain and wet grounds gave the Red Sox [illegible] with the edge [illegible] the Cardinals washed [illegible] to make it [illegible] to a finish.

Mike Gonzales making his first trip to Boston as manager of the Cardinals brought his club here this morning. Once a third string catcher with the pre-war Boston Braves, Mike became boss of the Cards the other day when Frank Frisch was ousted as pilot.

Mike had been weaned from baseball as a coleminer in Havana before he came to play semi-pro ball on Long Island, N. Y. along with a number of other Cubans. He was a good catcher possessing a rifle arm and he wasn't the worst batter in the National League.

MIKE GONZALES

When he reported to Manager Johnny Rung, Mike couldn't speak more than a couple of words of English. And, his knowledge of the denominations of American currency was on a par with his command and understanding of the English language.

Along with many other doves, Mike lived at the old Hotel Oxford. Late in the afternoon of the day that he drew his initial pay check from George Dovey, Mike went shopping and when he returned to the hotel, he had four of the gaudiest knitted ties that any haberdasher ever had on display.

Naturally, Mike being a Cuban, was duly proud of his new neckwear. And while showing his ties to the ball players in the lobby, Mike proudly to make it clear that at least he knew what he had purchased, draped the ties around his neck, as he paraded back and forth.

In the middle of Mike's demonstration, Billy Delaney came down stairs. During the winters he had spent at Juarez, Mexico, Bill Delaney acquired an understandable knowledge of Spanish. So Mike rushed over to Bill and asked him what he thought of the ties.

"They're O. K. Mike, if you like such a wild combination of colors," admitted "Del." "But, tell me something. How much did you pay for them?"

"Twenty-four dollars," replied the Cuban, in his best Spanish.

"Twenty four dollars," yelled Delaney, in a combination of Spanish and profanity, "why you couldn't hit 20 dollars worth of neckties."

"Where'd you buy them. Come with me. I'll give that salesman a real going over."

And [illegible] Mike and Del [illegible] With a [illegible] ties were back. The Cuban had [illegible] with just as many [illegible] which cost him but $8.

To this [illegible] Mike Gonzales and Del Delaney [illegible] Mike has packed up on his Elgin and Del has [illegible] most of his Spanish. And whenever the Cuban is in town he [illegible] into the concession [illegible] and fan for a time over the old days at the Hub Oxford.

matinal practice at the Fens Stadium tomorrow for they must play the Boston Comet West End A. C. in the Nutmeg State next Sunday afternoon.

Thus ends all prospects for their clash with Wanie et al, which Owner B. Sc[illegible] hopes will attract at least a pair of 20,000 customers and thus prove to the National League officials that Boston would support a Sunday baseball league.

"Although I feel that the Shamrocks have developed a large following and that there'd have been a good crowd at Fenway Park tonight," declared Scully this morning, "I postponed the game because I want the Boston fans to see the "Rocks" under the best possible playing conditions. We've got a good club this year one which will get better as the season advances. Right now we can hold our own in the National League but the magnates, and I don't blame them for their stand, demand that we show them."

You'll see a great game Monday out in Kenmeally, and I'll tell you why. In order to field the best independent club in the country, we entered into a working agreement with the Pittsburghs, for Owner Rooney of the Pirates signed up an army of collegians during the off season.

EYES FOR STARS

"For years, I've kept a close watch on college gridiron stars and when I looked over Rooney's roster, I realized that the Pirates have signed many of the most outstanding. Just as soon as Johnny Blood had selected his squad, I put in a bid for George Platukus, George Mulligan and Steve Tolbert, three great ends, Jack Nausch and Jack Robinson, tackles, Shipley Farroh, a guard from Iowa, Joe Maras, former Duquesne center, Charlie Spitzak, former Carnegie Tech back and Josh Pike, who starred in the backfield for Davis and Elkins.

"Now, although they didn't lose any money when they were farmed out to the Shamrocks by the Pittsburgh club, all of the players we have on loan are anxious to play in the National League.

"Watch and see if I'm not right.

"You've heard and read volumes on the ability of "Whizzer" White, and you can't get away from the fact that the Colorado boy has what it takes but I'm predicting here and now that Tony Di Natale will make "Whizzer" step at his prettiest to steal the show at Fenway Park.

"Because we played the college rules against the All Stars a week ago, the "Rocks" didn't look so hot, during their aerial attacks. Under the college rules forward passes cannot be made within five yards of the scrimmage line and that restriction cut down our overhead game about one third.

"But we'll let out Monday and if the "Rocks" are clicking, we'll show the fans a real overhead game."

'Bugs' Says:

Rain Great For Bucs

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Copyright, 1938, by International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (INS)—When it rained the Pirates got a better break than mice born in a cheese factory. Every game in the National League was washed out and won't be back again. That's as final as a nod from Chief Justice Hughes.

It also rained some more over at the West Side Tennis Club where the national championships are coming to a slow boil. The only dry spot in the East is the six-day circular tour in Madison Square Garden. The way to look at a six-day race is to make exactly the same motions as a chef curling anchovies.

Louis Unbeatable, Declares Tunney ‡ May Eat Way Out of Title

By JACK CONWAY

GENE TUNNEY does not believe there is a heavyweight today who can defeat Joe Louis. Tunney, looking physically fit, spent a day in Boston in connection with his new duties in the liquor business.

Mr. Boston

"Joe Louis is a great heavyweight, and there isn't anybody in sight to beat him," said Tunney. "The white heavyweight who comes along and conquers Louis will become a public idol. He will be one of the most popular boxers of all time."

Tunney believes Max Schmeling was paralyzed with fear before Louis hit him in their last bout.

"Schmeling made a miserable showing," said Gene. "The German backed against the ropes, and when Louis threw a left-hand punch at him he didn't do anything in return. If Schmeling had led with his own left, he would have forced Louis back.

"When Louis saw that he didn't have any kind of opposition, he opened fire with both hands, and knocked Schmeling out quickly."

Tunney spoke in the highest terms of Louis' manner of living.

"Louis lives a good, clean life," declared the former champion. "He won't wreck his own body by dissipation.

"Joe only has one fault. He likes to eat. If he permits himself to put on too much weight, he will slow up, and be easy to hit. Right now Louis could slow up a great deal, and still beat the type of heavyweights we have around."

Tunney left Boston to give a talk on boxing at a sports writers dinner at Stamford, Ct.

"I try to keep on the move even though I am only a former champion," said Tunney good naturedly. "Drop in and see me when you come to New York. Maybe we can figure out a way to find a new heavyweight champion. A white heavyweight champion would easily earn $5,000,000 inside of a few years."

Match Race Is Unlikely

SAMUEL RIDDLE knocked the proposed match race between Stagehand, War Admiral and Seabiscuit as high as a kite when he declared he isn't interested in such an affair.

"I have War Admiral entered in the Jockey Club's Gold Cup race at Belmont on October 1," said Riddle. "Seabiscuit and Stagehand are also entered for this classic. If the owners of Seabiscuit and Stagehand want to test the speed of their thoroughbreds against War Admiral, why isn't the Gold Cup race the right spot for the clash?"

Owners of thoroughbred race horses usually want 90 per cent the best of it when they are making arrangements for a match race. This is why it is so difficult to stage such affairs.

Then if it comes up mud on the day of the proposed race, there is danger of a last minute cancellation.

It now seems almost certain that Stagehand, War Admiral and Seabiscuit will not meet this year. The affair, if it does take place, will have to go over until 1939.

If the race took place this month over a distance of a mile and three-sixteenth, I would buy a $2 win ticket on Stagehand. Who do you like?

Rain Working for Pirates

THE RAIN that has washed out so many National League games is working in the interest of the Pirates.

The poor weather conditons appear to have definitely eliminated the Cincinnati Reds as a pennant possibility. Bill McKechnie looked at heavy skies and pelting rain during his two-day stay in Boston. It was McKechnie's plan to draw closer to the Jitter-Bucos during his stay here.

The Giants are hopelessly out of the National League race which leaves the Cubs as the only club that appears to have any serious chance of overhauling the Pirates. The Cubs are only three and a half games behind Pittsburgh, and if the Reds can knock over the Pirates in their remaining games, Gabby Hartnett's clan has a chance to finish first in a late rush.

I would not care to bet on the chances of the Cubs. They will have to get too many favorable breaks to win. First, the Pirates must go bad, while they themselves must win. The weather also must be fair so as to permit baseball.

The Pirates realize they now have a big advantage over the Cubs, Reds and Giants, and this thought should tend to settle them down for the final drive.

Linemen Worry Crusader Coach

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 20 (AP)—With a dozen grade A backs at call, Holy Cross will open its football season against Providence College here Saturday. But the quality in the line is an open question until that game, claims Coach Eddie Anderson.

In the forward wall are four men with game experience, three on the left side. Rain today sent the squad into the gym but Anderson said it made slight difference, that there will be no scrimmage this week.

Fight Results

PROVIDENCE—Ralph Zanneli, Rhode Island, scored a third-round technical K. O. over Johnny Martin (145½), Providence.

Bill Boyd, Birmingham, Ala. (158), stopped Roy Kriley (171), Brockton, Mass., in four rounds.

Tony Costa (127), Woonsocket, defeated Salvatore Bartolo (127½), East Boston.

NEW YORK—Mike Belloise (128¼), K. O'd Joey Wach (127¾) of New York in third round.

HOLYOKE—Frankie Young (147), New Haven, Ct., defeated Oscar Suggs (146), Providence, six rounds.

Jerry Maloni (152), Springfield, K. O'd Joey Silva (151), Fall River, in the fifth round.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Steve Dudas (195), Edgewater, N. J., heavyweight, K. O'd Al Massey (200), Ge.deboro, N. C., in second round.

Lynn English-Chelsea Clash Friday Night

Haverhill Host to Rindge Under Lights

By SAM BROGNA

Only two night contests are on tap for Greater Boston schoolboys this week before the full rush is on Saturday.

Chelsea is the only school who will be facing the arc lights for the second time this season while Lynn English, Rindge Tech and Haverhill will be the new comers.

The Chelsea-Lynn English clash at the new Manning Stadium in Lynn is expected to be a humdinger. Another near capacity crowd will be on hand for this tilt. It will be the North Shore's boys first game while the Red Devils will be seeking their second straight win.

At the new Haverhill stadium, Coach Jim Mansfield's boys, fresh from their 51 to 0 win over Dracut Saturday last, will go after victory No. 2 at the Technicians expense.

Something of the unusual happened over the opening week-end clashes. Of the 26 games that were played, not one ended in either a scoreless tie of a deadlock.

The original scrimmage between Roslindale high and Trade school scheduled to take place this afternoon at the Fens Stadium, has been put over until tomorrow. Rain, which has caused the schools to abandon the field three times last week and once in as many days this week, is the chief reason. The squads have only been out a little over a week and, due to the inclement weather, have yet to get into full swing.

Cambridge Latin will have the honor of opening up the Friday afternoon schedule. Coach Bill Elbery's boys will play hosts to Newton High at the Russell Field gridiron at 3 o'clock. Both teams will be out for their first win.

When Brockton opens its defense of the state title Saturday against Worcester Commerce, it will be the first time in the past quarter century that they will be headed by a new coach.

Wentworth Squad Out

A squad of 35 candidates including six lettermen and nine ex-New England schoolboy stars have reported to Joe Tansey for the Wentworth Institute football squad at Wentworth Field, Parker st., Roxbury.

Coach Tansey lost 12 out of 18 lettermen from his eleven which won five games, tied Boston University freshmen, and lost to Newport Naval Training School a year ago, but incoming prospects are excellent.

Among the veterans are Paul Wayne Abington, fullback and captain of Abington Town team; Steve Broullette, Los Angeles boy and ex-Montpelier Academy quartertack; Roland Magee, Marblehead, halfback; Stanley Wood of Salisbury, Amesbury High captain in 1936, a tackle; John Ceasar, ex-Boston Trade School tackle; and Wilfred Holsberg, ex-Winthrop High guard.

Hole-in-One Off Until Thursday

The sixth annual Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Hole-In-One tournament will start Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the specially constructed layout at Franklin Park, alongside the first tee of the Scarborough course.

Because of rain, the annual tournament, scheduled to start yesterday, has been postponed until Thursday. Acting-Mayor Joseph E. Kerrigan and Park Commissioner William Long will be given the honor of firing the first five balls at the flag, 120 yards away.

All the former winners in the Hole-In-One contest will be back again before the tournament closes, a tournament in which duffers have just as much chance of sinking an "ace" as expert golfers.

LOU NOVA SIGNED

Wilson-Boston, Harlow's Stars

"Harvard must have good blocking" is the way Dick Harlow answered the question which came up at an early season press conference as to just what his plans would be in turning out a capable reserve blocking back to give Chief Boston a spell when the going became rough.

"Harvard will have good blocking" is the way in which the question might be answered at present, for Harlow soon came to a very important decision regarding his "handyman" of the squad—big Cliff Wilson of Leominster.

Wilson has had the most interesting career of any man now on the Crimson varsity roster. After preparing for Harvard at Andover, Cliff captained his freshman football team—the famous "Stahley Wildcats" of three years back—and played center and guard.

Transferred to the blocking back job by Harlow in the '36 spring practice, Wilson carried through nicely, winning his first varsity letter against Yale that fall. He was changed back to guard this spring, but when Chief Boston, his buddy and roommate, underwent a second abdominal operation during the summer, Wilson was promptly listed by Harlow as a blocking back.

This is the "Damon and Pythias" combine of the Crimson squad, for the two are practically inseparable despite the fact that they are both battling for the same position. They alternated as sophomores, and when Chief was hurt before last fall's Army game, Cliff took over and played a grand game against the Kaydets.

Boston, son of a Pawtucket sports writer is apparently all set to go this year and once again the two boys will alternate with Wilson probably rating the starting assignment and Chief slated for the reserve work although only Harlow can say as to this.

Humphries New Find on Eli Grid Squad

By Associated Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Just when Yale alumni were rejoicing about the Blue's first "team" since before Larry Kelley and Clint Frank took over Yale's football destinies campus gossips pointed out that Gil Humphries has emerged as a very hot all-around back, the man who'll outfrank Frank.

WEST POINT, N. Y. — Army drilled in the big gymnasium during the rainy spell, but Coach Bill Wood expects to have better quarters for rainy days soon. A new drill hall for instruction in light guns and machine guns has been completed, and the West Pointers will work on its dirt flooring when the practice field is too wet.

VILLANOVA, Pa.—Coach Clipper Smith, who guided Villanova to an undefeated gridiron season last fall, is just as glad he doesn't coach in the southwest. Down there, according to Clipper, the fans like the open, passing game so much they turn thumbs down on a team equipped with a brilliant running attack.

HAMILTON, N. Y.—Colgate, usually strong at the wings, has suffered a tremendous loss in Joe Drohan. Drohan, senior left end and one of the best pass receivers and open field blockers in central New York, has been declared ineligible because of low grades.

NEW YORK—Columbia's ardent search for proper protection for Sid Luckman, the triple threat tailback, has brought Art Radvilas, an end —and a good one in 1937—into the backfield. Radvilas will get plenty of chances to snare Luckman's passes, but Coach Lou Little counts on him to do a good share of the blocking, too.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 20 (AP) —Dan Dacey, sophomore guard on Team B, has been sidelined for the entire Dartmouth football season. He suffered a shoulder injury in Saturday's scrimmage, and Trainer Roland Bevan has reported that he would be unfit for play for at least several months.

Dacey was the first string replacement for Gregory Zitrides.

Rain Hurts Cubs; Buccs Sliding in

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (INS)—Rain today washed out all games scheduled for the National League, and it appeared probable that the weather man would have a large voice in deciding the pennant winner.

The postponements will throw a terrific burden on the pitching staffs of the Pirates, Cubs, Reds and Giants.

Bill Lee

The Pirates will be called on to play four games with the Dodgers in the next four days. The Reds must play three with the Giants in two days, and the Cubs have four to play with the Phillies in two days.

Offhand, one would say the Cubs would feel the strain more than the other three contenders for they can rely on only Bill Lee and Clay Bryant. Their other moundsmen strictly are a gamble.

The Reds have more and better pitchers than the others, and it seems likely now that the pennant will be decided in the seven games they have left to play with the Pirates.

The Pirates have most to gain by postponement. If rain were to wash out all their games with the Reds, the Pirates almost certainly would win.

Rain figures to do most harm to the Cubs, for they have four games to play with the Phillies, and they certainly figure to win at least three, if not all of them.

The Pirates have 14 games remaining; each of the others has 13 left to play. The Pirates have a 3½-game lead, so the burden of proof is on the Cubs, Reds and Giants.

Branch Rickey Plans St. Lou Pro Eleven

By Associated Press

Maestro Frita Crisler's magic has fired Michigan's droopy Wolverines to a high pitch. They may even become the dark horses of the Big Ten this season.

Branch Rickey told a close friend he didn't have a thing to do with Frankie Frisch getting the old heave-ho out of St. Louis. That will be good news to Frankie's legion of friends, most of whom admire Rickey, too . . .

Don't suppose the Pirates ever figured a guy named Jupiter Pluvius would win the pennant for them. But that's just about what has happened . . . The Iowa College team that will play the State Prison eleven October 15 is the Burlington Junior College crew.

Joe McCarthy

We got fast work from our scouts on that one.

Joe McCarthy tossed a party for his players when rain cinched the rag for 'em out in St. Louis and presented each with a cigarette lighter . . .

South Carolina has more than 400 pounds of football captains this year—Co-Caps Larry Craig and Pop Howell each tip the old beam at better than 200 . . . Everyone is conceding the pennant to the Pirates.

Gossip in the pro football dressing rooms is that Branch Rickey will put a team in St. Louis next season with Cal Hubbard, the American League umpire, as coach . . . A Duluth, Minn., high school has a line averaging 190 pounds and we can prove it . . . Tackle Carlisle Young contributes a lot with his 246 pounds.

The Cubs are the only major league team which pays off on the road . . . Joe McCarthy finally has got around to admitting his 1938 Yankees are the best ball club ever assembled, but his old pal, Tony Lazzeri, says (in print) that the Yanks can be licked and that the Cubs can do it.

Burt Shotton

Burt Shotton has the call on Ray Blades of Rochester as the next manager of the Cardinals because Blades is related to Vice-President Branch Rickey by marriage and Rickey doesn't want to push him ahead too fast.

Some of the experts swear Don Budge is wavering about turning pro, but don't you believe it . . . Joe Louis is going to build up a stable of prize fighters.

Charlie Grimm has done so well as a broadcaster he has been tied up for three more seasons.

JOIE ARCHIBALD

Archibald to Study Medicine

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 20 (AP)—Joey Archibald of Pawtucket, R. I., a leading contender for the world's featherweight boxing championship, started on the road to becoming a full-fledged doctor today when he enrolled in the pre-medical course at Providence College.

Archibald disclosed that he has been saving his purses regularly in order to realize his ambition to enter the medical field.

Casterline Seeks New Speed Records

NEWMARKET, N. H., Sept. 20—Eddie Casterline, Bay State auto speed merchant, will seek to lower the record in the 20-mile feature race over the speedway dirt track Sunday afternoon.

Drivers from all sections of New England, some from New York and New Jersey will be among the starters. Bob King of Waltham, Mass., Sonny Martin, Newmarket youngster; Joe Taggert, Bridgeport, Conn.; Bud Hardt and George Bouley of Waterbury, Conn.; Louis Guiliano of Providence, R. I., and others will be in the races.

N. E. Senior Golf Tilt Postponed

Because of the conditions of the Salem Country Club links, the New England senior golf tournament which was slated for today has been postponed until Tuesday, September 27.

Raid Colleges For Court Talent

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 20 (AP)—Quin Connelley, Rice Institute tennis coach, lashed out at the "raiding" of college circles for star performers today after an announcement that his national intercollegiate champion, Frank Guernsey, would make a tour with a tennis association.

Connelly said Guernsey told him by telephone from Philadelphia that he would not re-enter Rice, but instead would tour Egypt, India and Japan.

The Rice coach said some move should be made to "halt tennis officials from raiding college circles for star performers."

Amerks to Train In Edmonton

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 20 (AP)—The New York Americans of the National Hockey League will do their fall training in Edmonton, providing approval of Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, is obtained, Manager Mervyn (Red) Dutton said here today.

A hockey school will be operated in connection with Amerks' training.

Jumbos Boast Veteran Backs

The addition of Ted Sheehan to the Tufts grid squad gives Coach Manly a veteran backfield quartet, a unit which started to work well toward the close of last season.

George Chiros of Whitman has risen from the ranks as a competent quarterback and is a good passer. The heavyweight, Art Griffin, at wingback, is an expert ball carrier, a good blocker and a fine Ted Sheehan, probably the best pass receiver. On the other wing punter on the squad, promises to play an outstanding game.

At fullback, Jim Weldon, who made his letter two years ago, is a great blocker.

Sike Rachdorf keeps his Team A lineup almost intact, with the center and one tackle position still a toss-up among half a dozen players.

Lou Nova Subs For Bob Pastor

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (INS)—Lou Nova of Los Angeles today became a substitute for Bob Pastor in a 15-round bout here on October 3 against Gunnar Barlund of Finland. A leg injury sustained during training forced Pastor's withdrawal.

Sale Starts Buccs Take Checks

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Pittsburgh baseball club is accepting applications, accompanied by bank draft, certified check, or money order — by mail only—for World Series tickets.

Officials said the word permitting the start of the sale was given by Commissioner K. M. Landis, who also granted the same permission to the Chicago, Cincinnati and New York National League clubs.

Unreserved seats at $3.30 and $1.10 will be sold only on the day of each game.

One box seat for three games (all mail order purchases must be for three games) will be $19.80 and one reserved seat $16.50, or at the rate of $6.60 and $5.50 each, tax paid.

Bert Niehoff To Manage Jersey

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (INS)—Another move toward building the Jersey City Little Giants into an International League pennant contender was completed today by owner Horace Stoneham, with the signing of Bert Niehoff, of Atlanta, to manage the Giants' farm club.

Niehoff succeeds Hank Deberry. Niehoff has managed various clubs in the minor leagues and for the last two seasons piloted the Louisville American Association team.

Winner-Take-All At Arena Mat Show

Added zest was given to the main bout at the Arena tomorrow night when Francois Robert, French champion, and Ted Grmaine, who will be featured, agreed "to the victor belongs the spoils." The entire purse will go to the winner.

In the semifinal, Gil Cross, Canadian wildcat, is to tackle Mickie Travers of Columbia.

FRANCIS OUIMET

Remember Sept. 20, 1913?

Francis Ouimet is receiving felicitations today. And rightly so, for it marks the 25th anniversary of his famous victory over Ted Ray and Harry Vardon for the national open golf championship.

Picture, if you can, a gangling kid of 19 years matching strokes with the greatest exponents of the ancient game.

Vardon and Ray were the Sarazens and Hagens of their day. Ouimet, hardly more than a caddy working at The Country Club, was the first American to blaze the trail for the links game that is now on a par with our leading national sports.

This son of a poor family was to put golf on the front pages of the country's newspaper. And there it stayed.

After that sensational victory, Ouimet went on to bigger things. His masterful touch was to raise him to the top rung of the ladder, and though now off the form that made him famous, he is today considered one of its foremost pioneers.

The thousands of caddies through the country, ever mindful of Ouimet's rise to fame, have made the popular Francis their gulding star.

To duplicate his feat is their one ambition. Which in no small way accounts for the popularity of a game that was kicked around for years before this Brookline youth from the other side of Lee street made the game what it is today—and millions are satisfied.

Hostak Flattens Stuhley in Third

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 20 (INS)—Al Hostak, king of the middleweights in every state except New York, knocked out Young Stuhley of Chicago last night in the third round of their 10-round overweight fight.

Hostak almost had Stuhley in the first round when he dumped the Easterner with a slashing attack. Finally in the third he really went to work and put over the finishing blows in savage style.
